Capturing the reality of our lives here in photographs is near impossible, for photos can never portray the variety of sensations that surround our daily life: the smells, te sounds, the tastes, the feel, and all those little moments when everything is perfect, those moments when you look around and say, "Ok, this is my life...and I'm content with it." Those moments slip by unnotived by anyone else, but they are what make up our time here. This is simply snippets of the year that was Duke '02-'03.

Jarring noise of the alarm (or maybe the construction outside). Smell of coffee from two seats over. Dead silence after a professor's question. Tight fingers after an essay exam. Musty smell of the stacks. New graffeti on the carrels. Heavy eyes and head bobbing up and down. Confident clicking of the computer keys. Brightness of the screen. Flipping the fourteenth page of an e-reserve. Falling asleep on your books. Finishing the last page of the paper. Turning in the final exam. Grades on ACES. A diploma.

Mathematics

Our warmest congratulations to the class of 2003.
Here is your last math quiz. Find the smallest integer greater than 1 that divides 2003.

The curtain slowly rises. They take the stage, the music starts, the MC steps forward, the actors speak, the dances gyrate across the stage, the comedian cracks a joke, the violins soar, the skirts twirl, the lovers kiss, the guitar wails, the soloist amazes, the speaker gestures, the moment lasts. The audience laughes, the audience cries, the audience applauds. The curtain falls.

It's been written before - the crack of the bat, the roar of the crowd, the smell of sweat, the thrill of winning. What new can be said about the overpowering of the senses that comes with both participating in and watching a sports match? Maybe a focus on the new isn't necessary; maybe more importantly, the emphasis should be put on the individual's experience - whether in co-ed IM basketball or a national championship - and their sweat, their hours of practice, and their exhileration. Maybe this is why Duke students love sports: whether on a team or by themselves, the individuals have overcome the ordinary and surpassed themselves.

DUKE U

Stand in the middle of the BC walkway at 12:15 on a Tuesday. Hear the Chapel bells at 5pm. Join a game of frisbee on the quad. Fight for a spot on the bus. Do the crossword puzzle during a lecture. Jump over a quad squirrel as he darts across the sidewalk. Inhale the aroma of McDonalds on your way to the mailboxes. Build a snowman. Make plans for lunch after class. Swipe your card to get into your dorm. Listen to the music in the Marketplace. Dodge the puddles. Chat with your friends over a beer at the Dillo. Skip class just because. Lie out in the Gardens. IM a friend for a study break. Smell the stale beer the morning after a party. Go to a meeting to plan the next event. Dance all night long.

The tradition. Six men. Four years. Every Sunday at midnight.
Life's most important lessons are not learned in the hallowed halls of academia, but rather at the WAFFLE HOUSE.

Strange Bedfellows

"With the drawing of this Love and the voice of this Calling

We shall not cease from exploration
And the end of all our exploring
Will be to arrive where we started
And know the place for the first time."
~T.S. Eliot, "Little Gidding," Four Quartets

carrie: I believe in reincarnation.
big: oh yeah? what are you coming back as?
carrie: someone who knows better.

The experience of Duke goes beyond anything our senses can tell us. Anyone may perceive the superficial: the taste of Marketplace food, the smell of the stacks, the sight of students shuffling to class: but only Duke students really feel and know the atmosphere that comes with living, playing, loving, working, fighting, drinking, and excelling here. This is our world ~ it may be a bubble, but it's our reality.
